Profile and Data

In Farah Province

Brief Introduction:

Farah province is located in western Afghanistan and belongs to Farah's Road River basin. Located between 31.39-33.51 degrees latitude and 60.58-64.75 degrees longitude, the province borders the Islamic Republic of Iran to the west, Helmand province to the southeast, Herat and Ghor provinces to the north and Nimroze province to the south. There are 549 villages and an estimated population of 726,170 (as of 2008). Farah is divided into 12 districts (listed below) that cover 41,832.65 square kilometers of which 535,910 hectares are used for agricultural purposes. Farah is famous for producing wheat and fruits, especially watermelons. Much of Farah is characterized by sand blown hills and there is a high degree of desertification as a result. Farmers raise livestock in areas of higher elevation, usually along vegetated hillsides.

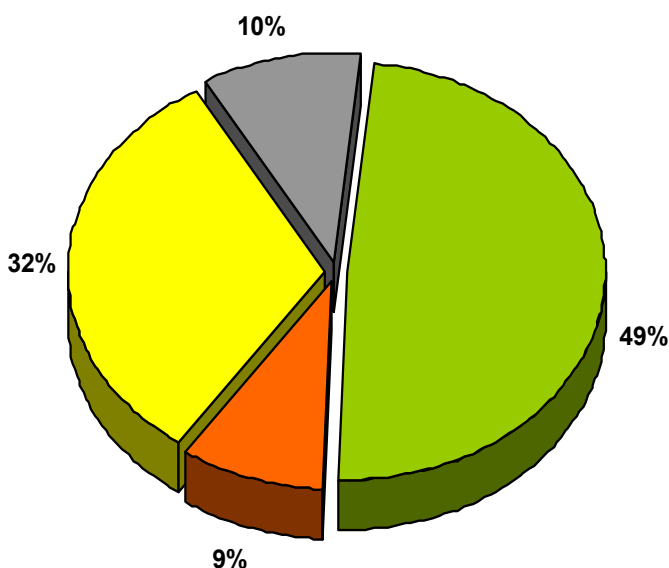

In 2008, Farah produced 48 different agricultural products on 66,708 cultivated hectares of land (31 percent of the total area). One fourth of the province's cultivated area is concentrated in 4 of the 12 districts (located in the central and southern districts) and this is due to the proximity to the Farah Road River and fertile soil. Farmers raise livestock in the northeastern districts because of the area's hilly topography.

The districts of Farah are:

- Khak-i-Safed      - Balabuluk
- Anar Dara          Lash-I-Juwayn
- Purchaman        - Farah Center
- Bakwah            - Gulistan
- Pushrud           - Qala-I-Kah
- Shib Koh

In 2008, crop production surveyed in Farah province amounted to 1,072,193 metric tons (MT), mostly consisting of fruits (49 percent) followed by animal fodder and industrial crops (32 percent), grain (10.11 percent) and vegetables (9 percent). The total market value of Farah's 2008 agricultural output was estimated at $424.8 million, with no contributing value added processing made to the supply chain.

Of the 12 districts of the province, Farah Center took the lead in terms of agricultural production, generating 35 percent of the total output. Pushtroad district held the second position, contributing 14 percent of the harvest and Bakwah and Purchaman together stand third with 11 percent and 10 percent, respectively.

Research Methodology

This report was prepared based on information provided by AgNet/NAIS system. In 2007 and 2008 AgNet Conducted two separate surveys (1) district profile survey and (2) agricultural statistic survey in 19 provinces of Afghanistan with the support of ASAP and MAIL at district level. During a period of 4 months each, more than 50 surveyors collected information related to the number of hectares land cultivated types of products produced number of livestock, crop calendar, sources of water and much more agricultural information. The information presented in this report is based exclusively in the area surveyed, not in the total farm land of the provinces. The AgNet/NAIS data base for Farah is the most accurate database available in the country in spite there is not estimation rewarding the level of exactitude of the information. All data related to harvest amounts was checked in July 2008 by ASAP personnel (Mr. Dr. A. Ghani Taj Agricultural Information Specialist and former professor of Kabul University and Ahmad Jawid Abid Survey and Data Assistant) by comparing the national average productivity level of each products. Crop value information was determined on wholesale price in Farah and collected by Farah AgNet officer Mr. Mohammad Sardar and approved by deputy director of Farah Provincial Agriculture department Mr. Mohammad Aslam Dana in November 2008.

Grains

2008 annual grain production surveyed in Farah province was approximately 108,346 MT of which almost 75 percent was wheat and maize (worth $50 million). The remaining 25 percent comprised other grain crops ($12 million in value).

Annual fruit production surveyed in Farah province was estimated at 522,867 MT with a value of over $281 million. Watermelon represents 52.7 percent of all fruit products and generated $66 million in 2008. Grapes were the second most produced fruit (16.89 percent) but led in profits ($79.5 million). Pomegranates were another high value fruit, resulting in $25 million in revenue for Farah farmers in 2008.

With the exception of Lashi Jowin district, fruit production is widely distributed throughout all provincial districts. Farah is especially famous for its watermelons, grapes, pomegranates, apples and apricots. Farmers in Farah Center, Purchaman and Pushroad districts grew high volumes of these fruits in 2008. The following table shows that almost all 10 main types of fruits are grown in 11 districts (figures below are in kg).

Fodder & Industrial Crops

Alfalfa is a cash crop and good source of fodder used to feed livestock in Farah with at least $13 million worth produced in 2008. Clover, maize and barley are other heavily grown fodder or forage crops in the province.

Farah farmers grew alfalfa, maize and clover in almost all of the province's districts, and tend to use spring water and the Farah Road River for irrigating their land. Farah was the only province in Afghanistan where farmers were found growing small amounts of sunflowers and other oil seeds for household consumption in 2008. ## Livestock

Farah farmers raised 11 different types of livestock (See annex –V). In 2008, the total number of household livestock in Farah was calculated at 1,191,879, not including 1,363,558 chickens, ducks and turkeys. Balabolok, Purchaman and Gulistan districts accounted for 40 percent of the province's livestock and the remaining 60 percent is found in the other 9 districts of Farah province. Goats and sheep make up 85 percent of all livestock of the province.

Cattle in the province are composed of oxen and dairy cows. The number of donkeys is a good indicator for the development of transportation in the country. Chickens are a good source of protein and housewives often sell poultry to generate pocket money in Farah as well as in other provinces of Afghanistan. High percentage of goats and sheep could indicate a presence of Kuchi nomads herding their goats and sheep on quality pasture land.
